My Very Own Bibliography

Remember that a bibliography is what makes a research paper. Without it, you could not call it a research paper. The bibliography lets the reader know that you have consulted sources regarding your topic. At this point in your paper, it is important that you use your note cards with your sources on them. The first step is to create an alphabetized list of your sources.

Directions: In the spaces below, rewrite your sources in alphabetical order. Include all of the information on your card. The author's last name should go first (Smith, John).

Part II. Entering the information in the Son of Citation machine.

Directions: Every teacher has a different format for an end of paper bibliography. The website link below has all formats. All you have to do is go to the website and click on the format that the teacher tells you to use. Once you do that, you will see a place to type in your bibliographic information. Enter the information and click the submit button, and the source will be put in the proper format for you. Cut and paste the source into your bibliography in alphabetical order, and your bibliography will be perfect!
